NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

PRESIDENT HARRISON yesterday reappointed Charles S. Zane to be Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Utah. Judge Zane held this office when Mr. Cleveland became President, and had to give place to a Democrat. The Mormons hate Zane as the devil hates holy water.

Mr. GLADSTONE was knocked down by a cab in London yesterday, and had to be helped to his feet. In a moment more he was chasing the cab on a lively run, and did not stop till the police arrested the driver. Last night he was in his place in the House of Commons, not having received any injury.

The authorities of Guthrie suppressed a riot yesterday, and demonstrated their ability to enforce the decisions of the arbitration board in settling conflicting claims for lots. No body was killed or hurt, though the mob was very violent. Law prevails in Oklahoma, the result of its settlement by a population mainly Eastern and civilized.

The Faulkner trial at Rochester has narrowed down to a contest between the Faulkner brothers, James and Lester B., as to which shall swear the other into state prison. The testimony of the latter yesterday went to show that he was ascertained in politics and visiting Ed. Murphy at Troy while James was winking the bank. Par noble fratres!

MAX GOLDBERGER is raising from New York. Mr. Goldberger did a private banking and brokerage business among the poor people of the Polish and Hungarian Hebrews, and their money is misfug also. Their deposits ranged from $10 to $200 apiece. Goldberger's liabilities are estimated at $10,000 to $15,000, and no assets are discoverable.

The Philadelphia saloon keepers have made a canvass of the city on the Prohibition question, and report a certain majority of 57,592 against the amendment, with four wards to go free. The saloon men have now an opportunity to escape from the high license law, which taxes them very heavily, and to secure the Prohibition which, we are informed, "does not prohibit," and which exacts no license fees at all. And yet they are working tooth and nail against Prohibition. Quer, isn't it?

Gov. HILL yesterday signed the bill requiring the County Clerk of New York to be a resident, and authorizing a deputy to perform his duties in his absence. This law was enacted to enable County Clerk Reilly to get married. The bride is Miss Cora Mitchell of Saratoga Springs, and the wedding will take place in that village June 5th. It was kind in the Governor to give the Clerk a vacation, but the law has some of the characteristics of special legislation.

The elements are unfavorable to the crops out West. Around Wabash, Ind., corn and potatoes were nearly ruined and wheat badly injured by a frost Wednesday night. Thursday night there were heavy white frosts at Columbus, Ind., and Grand Forks, Dak. The same night there were heavy hail and rain storms in Kansas, which washed out the tracks of the Union Pacific, and forced the Denver express to put back into Kansas City. These storms spread over Northern and Western Kansas.

The latest reported bank trouble is that of the Merchants' National of New Haven. This institution had a surplus of $100,000, which is just found to have been wiped out by John C. Bradley, cashier, and Charles W. Palmer, assistant teller, in discounting worthless notes for personal friends without referring them to the directors. Bradley and Palmer have been arrested. They are not known to have profited by the operations, and the direction which the money took has not been discovered. The President of the bank is ex-Gov. Bigelow.

LAURA BRIDGMAN died yesterday in the South Boston asylum, aged 59. When a child Miss Bridgman had an attack of scarlet fever, which destroyed her senses of sight, hearing, taste and smell. At the age of eight she was taken to the Massachusetts school for the blind. Here she was educated by the use of raised letters. In a short time she was able to read these books and to write letters to her parents in New Hampshire. Her progress in knowledge was marvelous, and for years her name has been known to every friend of the unfortunate. Charles Dickens devoted a chapter to her in his "American Notes." Two years ago the semi-centennial of her admission to the asylum, where she had always lived, was celebrated, and Julia Ward Howe read to her an affectionate address.

The mystery of the Cronin murder is being brought to light. The house in which the crime was committed has been discovered and furnishes unmistakable evidence of the dark and bloody deed. The details show a plot that has no counterpart in American annals, but fits the criminal literature of medieval times. The plot was laid before the 20th of March, when the house was hired by strangers for this very purpose. Enough furniture was carried in to give a pretense of occupancy. When the second month's rent, to be paid in advance, was due, the lessee was promptly on hand and again disappeared. In order to lure the doctor into the trap, he was induced to go to the house of an ice man named O'Sullivan, a few feet in the rear, and enter into a yearly contract to attend his workmen when they got hurt. When the assassins were ready for their work the doctor was called for and hurriedly driven to the house. On the night of the tragedy a citizen saw a man alight from a covered buggy, run up the steps and enter the house. Loud voices were heard immediately afterwards, and then all was quiet. The man who entered the house was Cronin; his murder was not accomplished without a hard struggle, for great stains of blood are on the parlor floor, and smaller ones in the kitchen, on the threshold, the steps and the sidewalk. This was no American murder. The plot had its inception in minds trained in the criminal mysteries of the old world. The report which Cronin had prepared for the Clan-na-Gael council, and which is supposed to have provoked the murder, implicates Alexander Sullivan, the man who several years ago shot down a school superintendent in cold blood because he had caused the dismissal of Sullivan's wife from a position.

FATHOMING A MURDER MYSTERY.

The Story a Milkman Tells of Events at Carlson Cottage.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

CHICAGO, May 25.—William Merles, a milkman who lives in the neighborhood of the Carlson Cottage in which it is supposed Dr. Cronin was murdered, tells a story which adds to the evidence leading to that conclusion. On the night of the murder between 8:30 and 9 o'clock—about the hour at which it is supposed the Doctor arrived there in the buggy with the man who came for him—Merles left his house to visit the grocery at the corner of Ashland-avenue and Otto street, which is only a short block east of the Carlson Cottage. He walked east on Addison-avenue to Ashland and then turned south on the east sidewalk. As he neared the Carlson Cottage a buggy containing two men rolled up to the edge of the ditch. One of the men, whom Merles described as a tall thin apparently athletic man, sprang from the buggy and ran up the front stairs of the cottage, the door of which was thrown open. He was knocked for admission. Scarcely had the door closed again when the sound of loud and angry voices within the cottage startled the milk-dealer. He looked scorchingly at the man in the buggy, but the stranger's face was shrouded by the brim of a soft hat, and Merles was unable to tell whether he was stout or slender, or fair or dark. The fellow whipped his horse into a gallop, drove to Addison-avenue and then turned in the direction of the Lake. Merles says there was a faint light in the front room, and that the man who went up the steps—presumably Dr. Cronin—wore a long brown overcoat. Mrs. Cronin, the woman at whose house Dr. Cronin lived, says the Doctor wore a long brown overcoat on the night of the murder.

A milkman who has been in the story implicates a member of the Chicago police force in the taking off of Cronin. The officer in question is Detective Daniel Coughlin. The paper says that on the morning of the day when Cronin disappeared Coughlin engaged at a liver stable, not far from where Cronin lived, a horse and buggy, which he said a friend of his would call for that evening; that the man did call and was given a white horse, similar to the one attached to the buggy in which Cronin was decoyed away; that the time of going and the description of the man correspond minutely both with the time when the man came for Cronin and with the appearance of the man himself; that Coughlin subsequently cautioned the lively stable keeper to say nothing about the matter. Force is added to these revelations by the fact Coughlin was a member of one or more societies of which Cronin was a member, and that they were enemies. The matter was finally brought to the attention of Chief of Police Hubbard, who seconded the motion for an investigation of the matter and promises to probe it to the bottom.

Investigation into the hiring of the white horse by Detective Coughlin only adds to the evidence of the stupidity, if nothing worse, with which the case has been handled by some of the police officials.

BURGLARY AT ATTLEBORO, MASS.

Silverware and Diamonds to the Value of $1,200 Stolen Last Night.

By Telegram to The Freeman. ATTLEBORO, Mass., May 25.—The residence of Albert Bushee was entered last night by burglars and silverware and jewelry valued at $1,200 taken. The burglars entered the house by a back door and during the past few years purchased a large stock of silverware. The family retired about 11:30 p. m. leaving the door open. The burglars entered a small rear window. It was here that the alarm was effected. Bushee was awakened at 2 o'clock by the sound of a door opening and opened his eyes just in time to see some one passing through the room. He arose, but the thief escaped. Investigation showed that the solid silverware in the sideboard, numbering 300 pieces, was missing. A diamond ring valued at $200 was also taken from the dressing case. The awakening of Mr. Bushee probably saved $500 worth of diamonds that were in the same dressing case.

NEWS FROM POINTS FAR AND NEAR.

Concerning the Annexation of Certain Islands.—Women Pillage Bakers' Shops. Dr. Kierian was on a tour again yesterday at Chicago in the insane asylum investigation. "Day is an object at the asylum," he said, "and it attracts toughs and roughs. To be out down to see to get only medical students and those anxious to learn to be attendants. At one time Dr. Kierian made a tour of the insane asylum, and it was very dangerous to go out. The attendants were not to be trusted. They could not be trusted with so much work. Dr. Kierian also refused at one time to allow the employees access to the superintendent and to the superintendent's very room, and threatened to kick the door down. It was no use to discharge the attendants when incompetent. They would come back and be as bad as before. They could not be discharged, and had more influence than the Superintendent. The attendants gave sleeping tablets whenever they wanted to. Dr. Kierian altered this system, and made himself very unpopular."

The plot was laid before the 20th of March, when the house was hired by strangers for this very purpose. Enough furniture was carried in to give a pretense of occupancy. When the second month's rent, to be paid in advance, was due, the lessee was promptly on hand and again disappeared. In order to lure the doctor into the trap, he was induced to go to the house of an ice man named O'Sullivan, a few feet in the rear, and enter into a yearly contract to attend his workmen when they got hurt. When the assassins were ready for their work the doctor was called for and hurriedly driven to the house. On the night of the tragedy a citizen saw a man alight from a covered buggy, run up the steps and enter the house. Loud voices were heard immediately afterwards, and then all was quiet. The man who entered the house was Cronin; his murder was not accomplished without a hard struggle, for great stains of blood are on the parlor floor, and smaller ones in the kitchen, on the threshold, the steps and the sidewalk. This was no American murder. The plot had its inception in minds trained in the criminal mysteries of the old world. The report which Cronin had prepared for the Clan-na-Gael council, and which is supposed to have provoked the murder, implicates Alexander Sullivan, the man who several years ago shot down a school superintendent in cold blood because he had caused the dismissal of Sullivan's wife from a position.

FATHOMING A MURDER MYSTERY.

The Story a Milkman Tells of Events at Carlson Cottage.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
CINCINNATI, May 25.—William Mertes, a milkman who lives in the neighborhood of the Carlson Cottage in which it is supposed Dr. Cronin was murdered, tells a story which adds to the evidence leading to that conclusion. On the night of the murder between 8:30 and 9 o'clock—about the hour at which it is supposed the Doctor arrived there in the buggy with the man who came for him—Mertes left his house to visit the grocery at the corner of Ashland-avenue and Otto street, which is only a short block south of the Carlson Cottage. He walked east on Addison-avenue to Ashland and then turned south on the east sidewalk. As he neared the Carlson Cottage a buggy containing two men rolled up to the edge of the ditch. One of the men, whom Mertes described as a tall and apparently athletic man, sprang from the buggy and ran up the front steps of the cottage, the door of which was thrown open before he knocked for admission. Scarcely had the door closed again when the sound of loud and angry voices within the cottage startled the milkman. He looked searchingly at the man who entered, and a stranger's face was thrust upon the view of a soft, and Mertes was unable to tell whether he was stout or slender, or fair or dark. The fellow whipped his horse into a gallop, drove to Addison-avenue and then turned in the direction of the Lake. Mertes says there was a dim light in the front porch, and that the man who went up the steps—presumably Dr. Cronin—was a long brown overcoat. Mrs. Cronin, the woman at whose house Dr. Cronin lived, says that on the morning of the murder a morning paper publishes a story which implicates a member of the Chicago police force in the taking off of Cronin. The officer in question is Detective Daniel Coughlin. The paper says that on the morning of the day on which Cronin disappeared Coughlin engaged, at a lively stable, not far from where Cronin lived, a horse and buggy, which he said a friend of his would call for that evening, and that the man did call and was given a white horse, similar to the one attached to the buggy in which Cronin was decoyed away; that the time of going and the description of the man correspond minutely with the time when the man came for Cronin and with the appearance of the man himself; that Coughlin subsequently cautioned the lively stable keeper to say nothing about the matter. Force is added to these revelations by the fact Coughlin was a member of one of the societies of which Cronin was a member, and that they were enemies. The matter was finally brought to the attention of Chief of Police Hubbard, who seems inclined to take a serious view of the matter and promises to probe it to the bottom.

Investigation into the hiring of the white horse by Detective Coughlin only adds to the evidence of the stupidity, if nothing worse, with which the case has been handled by some of the police officials.

BURGLARY AT ATTLEBORO, MASS.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
ATTLEBORO, Mass., May 25.—The residence of Albert Bushue was entered last night by burglars and silverware and jewelry valued at $1,500 taken. Bushue, who is a wealthy jeweler of this place, and during the past few years purchased a large stock of silverware. The family retired about 11:30 p. m. and the door was closed. The burglars entered by a small rear window. It was here that the entrance was effected. Bushue was awakened at 2 o'clock by the sound of a door opening and opened his eyes just in time to see some one passing through the room. He arose, and the burglars fled. Investigation showed that all the silver in the safe, valued at $200, was missing. A diamond pin, valued at $25, was taken from the dressing case. The awakening of Mr. Bushue probably saved $500 worth of diamonds that were in the same dressing case.

Concerning the Annexation of Certain Islands—Women Pillage Bakers' Shops.
Dr. Cleveland was on the stand again yesterday at Chicago in the insane asylum investigation. "Day is an object at the asylum," he said, "and it attracts crowds and crowds. I ought to be cut down as to get only medical students and those anxious to learn to be attendants. At one time Dr. Kierman made a rule that all bruises and injuries inflicted on the patients must be dressed at once. The attendants were sent immediately to the hospital and were not allowed to come back until they had been dressed. They would come around next day and brag that they could not be discharged, and had more influence than the Superintendent. The attendants gave sleeping pills whenever they wanted to. Dr. Kierman altered this system, and made himself very unpopular."

A Paris dispatch says: "The American copper mine delegates, with the exception of the representative of the Pennsylvania mine, have failed to reach the agreed arrangements concluded with M. THE CONGRESSIONAL APPOINTMENT.

Under the coming appointment for members of Congress, the ratio of which is generally considered as likely to be 20,000, Massachusetts is likely to lose but one member of Congress, under which state of affairs she will be as well off at least as the more important Eastern states. New York is expected to lose four of her 34 members, Pennsylvania three out of 28, and Ohio three out of 21. This is the first time that Ohio has sustained a loss under an apportionment, and it brings vividly to the mind the fact that she has ceased to be a Western state. There will be a general loss in the part of the states east of the Mississippi, though Illinois and Indiana will probably escape, and most of the smaller states also, as a reduction would amount to from 33 to 50 per cent.—Boston Herald.

As the apportionment is to be made by Congress, the Representatives are likely to look out for themselves in taking care of the question. Great states like New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, and others bordering on the Atlantic, are not likely to surrender many seats in Congress. In spite of Western gains these states still have a majority in both houses, and will thus be able to dictate the plan of apportionment. They are likely to do as they did in 1882, which was to sufficiently enlarge the House to keep their own numbers intact. The membership was raised from 284 to 325, an increase of 41, and this arrangement gave New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi one additional member, while South Carolina gained two. The only states the East that lost member each were Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. The bulk of the increase went West of course, but in this instance the East was powerful enough to take care of itself.

The population of the United States in 1880 is estimated at 64,000,000, including the four new states that are to be admitted this year. Counting the five members from those states, the number in Congress is 330. Should the membership be retained at its present number, the ratio would be 194,000, and this would require of New York a population of nearly 6,000,000 to keep its present number good. It is more likely that the ratio will be raised to about 175,000. This would give a house of about 366 members and require of New York a population of less than 6,000,000 to retain its present number. Nearly all the Legislative bodies of the chief countries of Europe are larger in numbers than ours is likely to become, even when all the territories are changed into states and thickly populated. Thus the English House of Lords, corresponding to our Senate, contains about 500 members, and the Commons, corresponding to our House, about 660. The German Reichstag has 382 members, and the Italian House of Deputies 508. If in states whose authority is largely monopolized in a monarchical system such representation is necessary, it certainly cannot be objectionable in a republic, which by every change of constitution is brought nearer to the people.

The Congressman who represents a district of 175,000 people is likely to find enough to do. The tendency of a republican form of government is towards an enlargement rather than a diminution of representation. The people wish to have their affairs attended to in Congress, and are willing to pay for the service.

FACTS, FACTS, FACTS.

So long as no reason appeared other than a wish to substitute Republicans for Democrats in the postal service, the numerous changes made in the personnel of that service since the inauguration of Harrison gave the Democrats an opportunity to sneer at Republican professions in favor of civil service reform. But some practical facts presented by the Indianapolis Journal furnish adequate reasons for the changes that have been made. Thus, out of eleven Division Superintendents of the railway mail service when the present administration came in, only two were found competent and efficient, and the subordinates were almost equally incompetent. This charge is sustained by the discovery that in the Chicago office six hundred bags and pouches were found unworked, which had been in the office from three to seven days. Now not an unworked package lies in that office over night. Another fact of like tenor is that when the present administration came in, more than half the mail that left New York for Boston at 9 A. M. was not distributed before it reached the latter city at 8:30 P. M., and could not be delivered till the next morning. Now it is all distributed before it reaches Boston, and is ready for the carrier's delivery at 4:15 P. M., on the day of leaving New York, a gain to the public of sixteen hours. Other lines report an equal improvement. Still another fact is the diminution of carelessness in handling the mail. In 1882 the report of errors in handling was an average of one error to every 3,751 pieces; in 1885, before the Democratic administration came in, the proportion of errors had fallen to one in every 5,485 pieces. Democratic demoralization brought up the record of blunders in 1888 to one in every 3,643 pieces. This shows a decrease in the efficiency of the service from 1885 to 1888 of 34 per cent, whereas from 1882 to 1885 it had increased 46 per cent.

If Democratic business men like this state of facts, then let them continue to rail at Democratic decapitations in the postal service as violations of the spirit of civil service reform. If they believe, however, that real reform consists in getting the best service possible, regardless of the personal convenience and satisfaction of incompetent men, then they must endorse the administration's action.

A QUESTION OF FEDERAL AUTHORITY.

The Providence Journal informs the people of Arkansas that their state is suffering in its material interests on account of the numerous political assassinations that have recently occurred there, and advises them that they must apply the remedy themselves, since outside interference is not to be expected and would not be proper. In regard to the Clayton murder it gives the opinion that "not much of anything can be done about it. Certainly nothing can be done outside the state, unless it be by shaming the Arkansas people into efforts at self-correction. There is no occasion or reason for the government to interfere."

The Journal is Mugwumpian in its principles and Democratic in its efforts. This, perhaps, has led it into the avowal of the most extreme doctrine of state rights. It would be a strange government indeed if the federal power at Washington had no constitutional right to protect itself. Clayton was a member of Congress. He was therefore a member of the federal government. His murder has made a vacancy in his rightful place, and left his assassin free to fill it with a man of his own choice, for certainly no Republican is anxious to enter the lists as a candidate, even if a new election is ordered. These three murders would overthrow the majority and revolutionize Congress. And yet we are told by one of the most intelligent newspapers of the North that the people of Arkansas and of other states at the South can go on killing Republican Congressmen-elect until they get ashamed of themselves, and there is no authority in the federal government to check or punish them.

The facts are against the Journal's theory. The ballot-box thieves at Plummerville, where Clayton was murdered, have been indicted by a United States grand jury and will soon be brought to trial before a federal Judge, who has behind him the whole power of the United States to enforce the decisions of his court. The trial of these scoundrels will probably lay bare all the facts in relation to the Clayton murder, and bring the criminals to justice.

The federal court has interfered in this case because the stolen ballot-boxes contained votes that had been cast for a member of Congress. But it is not worth while to forget that the federal government is the supreme authority everywhere and over every state. It is conservative and careful about laying its hands upon a state, but too many such acts as have recently occurred in Arkansas might cause it to be declared in a state of revolution. When the rebellion broke out President Buchanan declared that he could find no authority in the constitution for the coercion of a sovereign state. But after Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated the authority was found, and the suppression of the rebellion established beyond controversy the very right which the Journal seeks to discount. The government has the right to interfere in this Arkansas matter, and circumstances can alone determine whether there is occasion or reason for interference.

It appears from a report made to the Presbyterian Assembly that the mountain districts of North Carolina, Southwest Virginia, Southern and Eastern Kentucky and Eastern Tennessee contain a population of about 2,000,000, and are largely of Scotch-Irish descent, of whom 70 per cent can neither read nor write. This statement suggests the reflection that if there is one thing which is more essential than the education of the Southern negroes it is the education of the Southern whites.—New York Tribune.

NOT A PIMPLE ON HIM NOW. Had with Eczema, Hair all Gone, Scalp Covered with Eruptions. Thought His Hair Would Never Grow. Cured by Cuticura Remedies. Hair Splendid and Not a Pimple on Him.

I cannot say enough in praise of the Cuticura Remedies. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, and the doctors said he would never grow again. I began the use of Cuticura Remedies, and I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now growing all over his head, and he is now a healthy, happy child. I recommend the Cuticura Remedies to mothers as the most speedy, economical and safe remedy for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing. Mrs. M. E. Wooten, Norway, Me.

A Fever Sore Eight Years Cured. I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers, who has been cured by using the Cuticura Remedies, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness or fever eight years ago. He was so bad that he could not get on his feet, and his leg was so sore that he could not walk. He is now entirely well, and is happy to say that he is now a healthy, happy child. I recommend the Cuticura Remedies to mothers as the most speedy, economical and safe remedy for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing. Mrs. M. E. Wooten, Norway, Me.

Severe Scalp Disease Cured. A few weeks ago my wife suffered very much from a cutaneous disease of the scalp, and received no relief from the various remedies she used. She tried Cuticura. The disease promptly yielded to this treatment, and she is now entirely well. There has been no return of the disease, and Cuticura ranks No. 1 in our estimation for diseases of the skin. REV. J. THE CONGRESSIONAL APPOINTMENT.

Under the coming apportionment for members of Congress, the ratio of which is generally conceded as likely to be 30,000, Massachusetts is likely to lose but one member of Congress, under the new apportionment, and this is a very small loss. This is the first time that Ohio has sustained a loss under an apportionment, and it brings vividly to the mind the fact that she has ceased to be a Western state. There will be a general loss of the smaller states east of the Mississippi, though Illinois and Indiana will probably escape, and most of the smaller states also, where a reduction would amount to from 30 to 50 per cent.—Boston Herald.

As the apportionment is to be made by Congress, the Representatives are likely to look out for themselves in taking care of the question. Great states like New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, and others bordering on the Atlantic, are not likely to surrender many seats in Congress. In spite of Western gains these states still have a majority in both houses, and will thus be able to dictate the plan of apportionment. They are likely to do as they did in 1882, which was to sufficiently enlarge the House to keep their own numbers intact. The membership was raised from 284 to 325, an increase of 41, and this arrangement gave New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi one additional member, while South Carolina gained two. The only states of the East that lost a member each were Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. The bulk of the increase went West of course, but in this instance the East was powerful enough to take care of itself.

The population of the United States in 1880 is estimated at 64,000,000, including the four new states that are to be admitted this year. Counting the five members from those states, the number in Congress is 330, and this would require of New York a population of nearly 6,000,000 to keep its present number good. It is more likely that the ratio will be raised to about 175,000. This would give a house of about 366 members and require of New York a population of less than 6,000,000 to retain its present number. Nearly all the Legislative bodies of the chief countries of Europe are larger in numbers than ours is likely to become, even when all the territories are changed into states and thickly populated. Thus the English House of Lords, corresponding to our Senate, contains about 500 members, and the Commons, corresponding to our House, about 600. The German Reichstag has 382 members, and the Italian House of Deputies 508. If in states whose authority is largely monopolized in a monarchical system such representation is necessary, it certainly cannot be objectionable in a republic, which by every change of constitution is brought nearer to the people.

The Congressman who represents a district of 175,000 people is likely to find enough to do. The tendency of a republican form of government is towards an enlargement rather than a diminution of representation. The people wish to have their affairs attended to in Congress, and are willing to pay for the service.

FACTS, FACTS, FACTS.

So long as no reason appeared other than a wish to substitute Republicans for Democrats in the postal service, the numerous changes made in the personnel of that service since the inauguration of Harrison gave the Democrats an opportunity to sneer at Republican professions in favor of civil service reform. But some practical facts presented by the Indianapolis Journal furnish adequate reasons for the changes that have been made. Thus, out of eleven Division Superintendents of the railway mail service when the present administration came in, only two were found competent and efficient, and the subordinates were almost equally incompetent. This charge is sustained by the discovery that in the Chicago office six hundred bags and pouches were found unworked, which had been in the office from three to seven days. Now not an unworked package lies in that office over night. Another fact of like tenor is that when the present administration came in, more than half the mail that left New York for Boston at 9 A. M. was not distributed before it reached the latter city at 8:30 P. M., and could not be delivered till the next morning. Now it is all distributed before it reaches Boston, and is ready for the carrier's delivery at 4:15 P. M., on the day of leaving New York, a gain to the public of sixteen hours. Other lines report an equal improvement. Still another fact is the diminution of carelessness in handling the mail. In 1882 the report of errors in handling was an average of one error to every 3,751 pieces; in 1885, before the Democratic administration came in, the proportion of errors had fallen to one in every 5,485 pieces. Democratic demoralization brought up the record of blunders in 1888 to one in every 3,643 pieces. This shows a decrease in the efficiency of the service from 1885 to 1888 of 34 per cent, whereas from 1882 to 1885 it had increased 46 per cent.

If Democratic business men like this state of facts, then let them continue to rail at Democratic decapitations in the postal service as violations of the spirit of civil service reform. If they believe, however, that reform consists in getting the best service possible, regardless of the personal convenience and satisfaction of incompetent men, then they must endorse the administration's action.

A QUESTION OF FEDERAL AUTHORITY.

The Providence Journal informs the people of Arkansas that their state is suffering in its material interests on account of the numerous political assassinations that have recently occurred there, and advises them that they must apply the remedy themselves, since outside interference is not to be expected and would not be proper. In regard to the Clayton murder it gives the opinion that "not much of anything can be done about it. Certainly nothing can be done outside the state, unless it be by shaming the Arkansas people into efforts at self-correction. There is no occasion or reason for the government to interfere."

federal power at Washington had no constitutional right to protect itself. Clayton was a member of Congress. He was therefore a member of the federal government. His murder made a vacancy in his rightful place, and left his assassin free to fill it with a man of our own choice, for certainly no Republican is anxious to enter the lists as a candidate, even if a new election is ordered. These three murders would overthrow the majority and revolutionize Congress. And yet we are told by one of the most intelligent newspapers of the North that the people of Arkansas and of other states at the South can go on killing Republican Congressmen-elect until they get ashamed of themselves, and there is no authority in the federal government to check or punish them.

The facts are against the Journal's theory. The ballot-box thieves at Plummersville, where Clayton was murdered, have been indicted by a United States grand jury and will soon be brought to trial before a federal Judge, who has behind him the whole power of the United States to enforce the decisions of his court. The trial of these scoundrels will probably lay bare all the facts in relation to the Clayton murder, and bring the criminals to justice.

The federal court has interfered in this case because the stolen ballot-boxes contained votes that had been cast for a member of Congress. But it is not worth while to forget that the federal government is the supreme authority everywhere and over every state. It is conservative and careful about laying its hands upon a state, but too many such acts as have recently occurred in Arkansas might cause it to be declared in a state of revolution. When the rebellion broke out President Buchanan declared that he could find no authority in the constitution for the coercion of a sovereign state. But after Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated the authority was found, and the suppression of the rebellion established beyond controversy the very right which the Journal seeks to discount. The government has the right to interfere in this Arkansas matter, and circumstances can alone determine whether there is occasion or reason for interference.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The long-felt want of this country is a knowledge of the art of washing a flannel shirt in such manner that it won't shrink 50 per cent. The job can be done; but few there are who know how to do it.—Hamilton Spectator.

Let those who have the Irish cause at heart see to it that the planners of Cronin's murder are brought to a swift and sure account. The Irish cause and Mr. Cronin's murder are enemies enough in England without being thus foully dealt with in the house of their friends.—New York Sun.

Gov. Hill in vetoing the Saxton ballot reform bill, merely confirms the opinion that the Epoch has had of him for years. He is a trickster, a deceiver and a humbug. It is to be hoped that no self-respecting Democrat will ever again vote for such a man for any office in the gift of the people.—New York Epoch, Dem.

An American brewer now sojourning in London says he knows of one instance where books were opened in the city of London for $1,000,000 for the purchase of two American breweries, and before night fall $18,000,000 had been subscribed. There is no lack of money in London, and they who have it care not what it is invested in, or where, as long as it yields a dividend.—Cleveland Leader.

Veterans are not experiencing the delays in getting their pension certificates that annoyed them under the late administration. From March 27 to May 18, 1889, the issue of certificates by Commissioner Tanner numbered 19,816. During the corresponding period in 1888 Commissioner Black issued 15,151. The old soldiers have a friend at court now.—Utica Herald.

It appears from a report made to the Presbyterian Assembly that the mountain districts of North Carolina, Southern Virginia, Southern and Eastern Kentucky and Eastern Tennessee contain a population of about 2,000,000 white people, largely of Scotch-Irish descent, who would 70 per cent. can neither read nor write. This statement suggests the reflection that if there is one thing which is more essential than the education of the Southern negroes it is the education of the Southern whites.—New York Tribune.

New York has let the contract for a statue of Horace Greeley to be placed in her City Hall Park. Now if other cities will send in the money the statue will be erected. "We can live on bread and water," said a loving girl to the sweetheart she was about to marry.

"All right, my dear," said he, "you get the bread, and I'll skimp the water for the water." New York always furnishes both wind and water for great schemes, but the outsiders are called upon for the bread.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FAR WEST JOURNALISM.

The Guthrie "Getup" Lets Itself Loose in [From the Chicago Tribune.]

The salutary of the Guthrie Getup, the first newspaper published in Oklahoma, breathes the air of the free and unfettered West.

"We prance into the field at the head of the procession. Praise Jehovah, all ye good people, and let the praises resound to the measured stroke of our new job press. Ah, there's the rub! If you do not give us job work we must go back to our wife's folk. This would place us in a wretched fix, for we are not married. This last statement," adds the editor facetiously, "is particularly directed to single women who hold corner lots."

Then the policy of the paper is briefly outlined in vigorous language. "Should any man ever as much as kick his dog, we will give the public an accurate estimate of the motive power used. Pastors, free of charge, can look at our devil, and the W. C. T. U. is hereby approved. The correct weight of words of editor penitence, 'is particularly directed to single women who hold corner lots.'"

From a peculiar phase of the situation the "long-felt want" paragraph is missing, but the editor presumes much for the future. "Our King Whiting and press is in soak, and this account for the postage stamp size of the present edition, as it had to be printed on our new job press. The next issue expects to put on enlarged and more dignified pants, and this will make things better. Guthrie is a manufacturing capital of 1,000,000 people."

A suspicious and labyrinthine note follows: "Funeral notices will be published at a discount of 50 per cent."

The rural balletic column fairly teems with scintillating brilliancy.

"Our streets are being laid out. Thank heaven this cannot be said of our citizens."

"The Guthrie Getup" is the first of its kind at the little village of Oklahoma. Poor fellows! They will now have to drink beer.

"A few living pups are reporting stories of free flowing blood and numerous killings. The whole know better. There hasn't been a man killed in Guthrie since the 22d."

"The first Sabbath in Oklahoma was a quiet one. No real estate business was done. The gambling games were postponed until Monday morning, and no one was killed."

"The first fire in Guthrie was the burning of Marshal Jones' tent. The writer had a rifle stock badly scorched, and this curiosity relic is now for sale. At the price of the conflagration now on sale at the Guthrie office."

"An excursion from Arkansas City Sunday. That's proper, boys."

"We have three banks, but one is a sand bank. Hat on!"

"Jonathan Bowers is the first subscriber. Lord bless him. Come forward, brethren."

"Guthrie has no lice on her."

"East Guthrie boasts the fairest claim-holder in the west. He is the only one who sings like a lark, and will make it hot for jumpers."

NOT A PIMPLE ON HIM NOW.

Bad with Eczema. Hair all gone. Scalp covered with eruptions. The Guthrie Hair World Never Grown. Cured by Cuticura Remedies. Hair Splendid and Not a Pimple on Him Now.

I cannot say enough in praise of the Cuticura Remedies. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, and the doctors said he would never grow any more. I tried everything, but nothing would do but the Cuticura Remedies, and I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now coming in, and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all who suffer from eruptions, eczema, and all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

A Fever Sore Eight Years Cured.

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers, who has been cured by using the Cuticura Remedies, caused by a fever sore. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his hair cut, but it is now coming in, and he is perfectly well, and as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. Cason, merchant of this place.

Severe Scalp Disease Cured.

A few weeks ago my wife suffered very much from a cutaneous disease of the scalp, and received no relief from the various remedies she used until she tried Cuticura. The disease promptly yielded to this treatment, and in a short while she was entirely well. There has been no return of the disease, and Cuticura ranks No. 1 in our estimation for diseases of the skin.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH.

Cure Begins from First Application, and is Rapid, Radical and Permanent.

It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that is the seat of its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very walls, and renders life a long and painful struggle of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammeling the power of speech, destroying the action of smell, and finally, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Instantly, by creeping on from a simple cold, the head is assailed, the membranous lining and envelopes the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and other dangerous symptoms. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviations are simply procrastinated sufferings. Sanford's Radical Cure, by Inhalation and by Internal Administration, when fully diseased has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell, and taste are soon recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out.
